Subject: Tremendous job- 4pm rocked

Congrats to Producer, Jen Newman and anchor Louise Schiavone for a thorough and beautifully handled live shot with Phil Ewing at 4pm. This was NPR's first broadcast take on the Attorney General's summation of the Mueller report. We dedicated the entire front section to the interview- Louise asked the exact questions that were necessary and Phil handled himself with aplomb as well.

I am told that upon the conclusion of that 3-minute segment, applause literally broke out in the newsroom.

I can also tell you that given the timing of things, our head of News, Nancy Barnes made it clear that Newscast was to get the first shot at this. Thank you to the Newscast team for dealing with an important event like this with such composure, speed, and professionalism.

Curriculum Development

Business Leadership and Human Values/Moral Imagination, Johns Hopkins University Carey Business School. (August 20, 2018 - Present).

Through research and videography, I have developed a series of three segments examining the themes of Corporate Social Responsibility, Creating Shared Value, and Moral Imagination in the business world. This material emerges from a documentary project I am creating with help from my school about the use of oyster in marine restoration and generating greater biodiversity in aquatic environments. I have been lucky to have the cooperation and indulgence of the Glenmorangie Company, a Scotch whisky company that is one of 70 houses of the Louis Vuitton Moet Hennessy brand, based in Paris, France.
